Wadsworth Public Schools.

Wadsworth's pride is in its splendid brick school house and a corps of teachers chosen without favoritism and for qualifications only. The DISPATCH feels happy that it can present to your view that school house and would feel the same could it show you in that way Principal E. E. Caine and his assistants. They are hale and hearty and good looking and enthusiastic. As for the school house it stands the equal of any of its size in the Western States and the peer of a good many in the United States.

To make it thoroughly modern, to get and use the advanced ideas of the master minds among sanitarians, occupied the time and attention of architects, trustees and teachers. The result has called the encomiums of leaders of education in Nevada and California.

The building contains eight rooms and seven will be occupied next term. The younger children attend the lower rooms and the advanced grades the rooms above. The school grounds cover several acres and afford plenty of space for exercise during intermissions. Large trees fringe the grounds and shade is bountiful, while lawns and gardens make a beautiful foreground, with a smooth and broad asphaltum walk dividing them and leading to the main entrance of the building. The halls are wide and high, and the arrangement such that the rooms may be emptied in a few seconds, should accident require it. Cupboards and storage places are numerous, taking space that could not be used for other purpose, and lavatories are plentiful and convenient. Every room is large and airy, blackboards of the best manufacture line the walls, the windows are large and suggest good taste, the furniture is the latest improved, the shutters are of light wood fitted with the latest patent appliances.

Of course the building is hard finish, but the woodwork trimmings are of natural polished pine, and the combination so beautiful as to call forth the admiration of all who enter the building. We show you in this issue how the laboratory is fitted up for the study of chemistry, natural philosophy and physiology. This laboratory is by far the best and costliest in any public school building in Nevada. The apparatus used is extensive enough to meet not only the requirements of the text books of the State course, but also of any course followed on the Pacific Coast. Each student has at hand every convenience, as to use of apparatus, supplemented by the best work of carpenter and plumber to aid that convenience and encourage neatness. The bookkeeping rooms are such as a bookkeeper uses in following his occupation, and the art is taught just as it is practiced in the busy world. The pupils have their merchandise, money in coin and currency, bank checks, notes, etc., and the rooms are banks, stores, commission houses in miniature, as the case may be.

As to teachers, Principal E. E. Caine is an earnest student. He has the ability to apply best methods when he has searched and found them. He works harder than any man in Wadsworth. He has the really great faculty of being able to impress the teachers under him and get from them the best results. Study at Wadsworth is not considered work by the pupils, it is made so interesting that discipline is maintained with ease and children have not time for mischief. Prof. Caine pursues his work along this line and it

Prof. W. A. Henry.

The arrival of this accomplished musician and his stay among us has occasioned much joy. We have found him to be such a source of good that we want to keep him with us always. Entertainment and amusement that we could not otherwise obtain he has given us in quantity just enough to make us ask for much more. We are more pleased to have such a gentleman with us because we sincerely believe in the power and influence of music to elevate the character, and we not only feel, but we know, that the result of his teaching and his presence has been very beneficial to us not only as individuals, but as a community. As a violinist he has but few equals on the Pacific Coast. He is regarded as a successful teacher of the violin, piano, guitar, and other stringed instruments. His pupils have great regard for him and our citizens are appreciative of the spirit he has always shown as one of us desirous to see Wadsworth and Wadsworth's social life advance.

The Mines.

The Olinghouse mines turned out in gold the year they were discovered about $10,000; in '98 $20,000; in '99 $40,000 and this year to date $20,000 while from the outlook the output will be $60,000.

There are two mills, the S'p, owned by J. A. Goldie, J. D. Poole and Chas. McEchern. The Ora owned by E. H. Proctor and Hon. Lem Allen.

Greatest depth at which ore is found to date, that is deepest mine, 200 feet.

Every miner in the camp is prosperous and the great benefit to Wadsworth is apparent and appreciated.

The mine owners and miners in principal are: W. C. Williams, Brooks McClane, E. H. Proctor, Jos. Effrick, Luke Kearney, J. C. Babcock, D. H. Sisson, L. S. Bridges, A. F. Sisson, W. H. Jackson, J. C. Day, Geo. Abbay, J. A. Goldie, J. D. Poole, T. L. Bellam, James Poole, Alexander Pollock, William Crowley, Fred Youngmans, Wm. Nichols, Chas. Hardy, Peter Rosasco, L. Delpiazzi, W. J. Gill, J. H. Sheehan, Robt. Somers, R. M. Norris, R. M. Clark, E. D. Short, C. T. Short, T. Wetmore, C. H. Oliver, Dr. E. A. Jackman, D. Washeim, C. Washeim, J. O. Gregory, Ed. Gregory, C. H. Lewis, J. G. Driscoll, J. F. George, W. T. Golding, W. H. McInnis, Ed. Shearer, Jas. Shepley, E. G. Hummel, Jackson Ferguson, E. Griswold, E. Olinghouse, Wm. Donaldson, and many others.

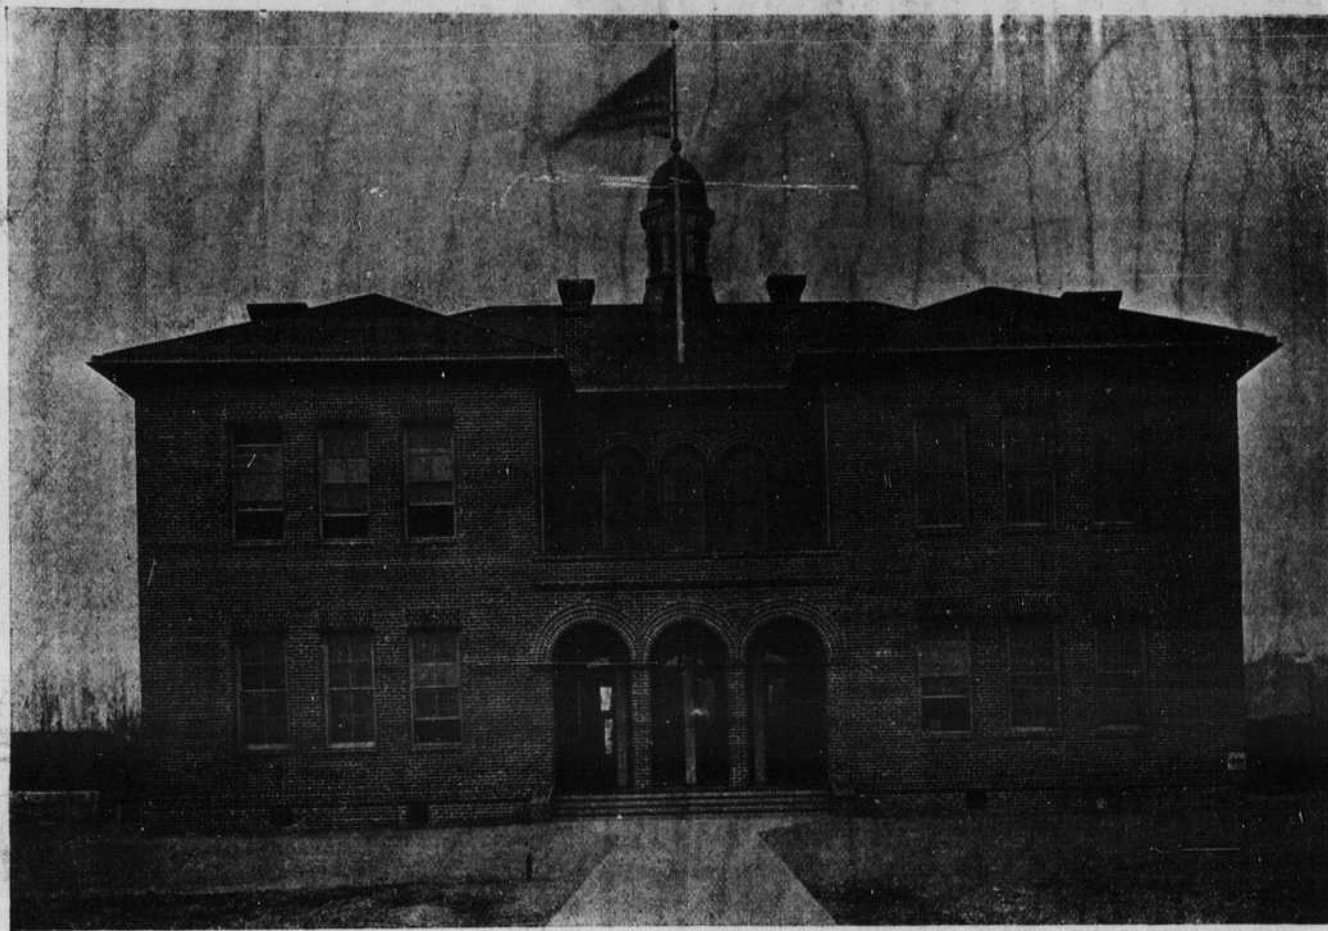

Olinghouse, from the grass roots, has treated the miner and prospector and investor better than any camp on the coast. It will continue to be heard from for years.

The Ball.

The ball at Music Hall July 4th will be great. The music under Prof. Henry is the best the State affords. The hall will be a woodland pavilion. The one girl in the world for you wants to go.

OUR PRIDE—PUBLIC SCHOOL.

is the true secret of success in teaching. He stands at the head of his profession now and is bound to be called to higher institutions. By parents Miss Bliven is given credit for being a successful teacher. Miss Pearl Pike has well earned the praise of all school teachers, school officers and school patrons, by the record she has made. Miss Stiner is granted to be a capable teacher. Miss Tredway has had long experience and is popular. Miss Woodbury comes to us with credentials that would give her position in any school from Maine to California and the children will like her. Mr. Doten, Asst. Principal is a Nevada young man with whom success is certain. Mrs. A. L. Layton's work appeals to all who have children attending school and the DISPATCH is mightily pleased that Wadsworth has secured her services again.

The Board of Education, Messrs. J. W. O'Brien, L. S. Bridges and Alex. Pollock, have not only been most faithful servants but have been likewise efficient. They devoted days and days to the work of determining every feature of the new building, looked after every detail however slight, and their work as a whole has the warmest commendation of the entire people. To instruct and guide the young they have been ever zealous to secure the services of the best teachers, and well have they done all the office called upon them to do. The people are grateful.
